Abeshina de Mayowa must, really, be at work. It's Sunday afternoon and he hasn't finished his shift at the barbershop. He is here wearing a red and white Arsenal shirt, thanks to the no-pixbet boss. Well, grace is just another word. Resignation: "I did the interval for love of the game", said Mr. "The manager knows that for me".

Many African and Westerners live to the rhythm of European football, with most of them concentrated in bars and restaurants - any establishment in the no-pixbet area is analyzed to assist idols playing for millions. Real Madrid (Spain), Barcelona or Paris Saint-Germain have considerable followers in the region, but none corresponds to the Premier League in Nigeria!

On game days, fans with all the flags gather in no-pixbet centers to watch - local teams equipped with some screens and a head-basher from the bank of the table; a grosser of the ropes that block the sun or reduce the light - like Abeshina (the man) fell in love with the Arsenal team.

Abeshina became a fan of Arsenal in the late 1990s, when the Nigerian channels and the Nigerian players began to play the Premier League for the first time. His older brother instructed him on which team he should support, in no-pixbet a moment where Nwankwo Kanu was one of the
